Anybody else see that flying saucer out South 16th Street way? Lady calls and reports she saw one, but to please not mention her name.

If anybody else saw it, let us know.

A nice letter from L. O. A. Dobbie. He's at An Khe, South Viet Nam and says he just got the last box of things we mailed last week.

He says the appreciation the people show for such things is a heart breaking sight. The squaker in which they live is unbelievable he says.

These are the refugees who have no place to go and have absolutely nothing.

Second phone who returned recently from Viet Nam told us that most of the regular homes there have just one room, with practically no furniture.

He pointed out that if a person in Viet Nam had what we call a den in the average American home, he would be considered a wealthy man. When we say den we are speaking only of that one room, not a whole house.

If you have a den in your home, take a look at it and imagine it being the entire home. Include with the den the electric lights, and possibly an adjoining restroom.

This would be the home of a wealthy man.

The standards of living are so far apart in the two countries that there is hardly any comparison.

Hooray for Rex Billington. Says he is planning to go pick up a load of Acer Saccharum, and he's gonna give us one.

That's a sugar maple in case you were wondering.

A Box Elder is also called a Sugar Ash.

Our Box Elder is doing well since we transplanted it.

Youngest brought in some bones last night from the grocery store, and old Sport was fit to be tied. He ate them all and came around this morning looking as though he had not had a bite to eat in days.

Fellow said the reason lightning never strikes in the same place twice is because it does not have to.

Boots Hennessy tells of a banker who sat for his portrait, then refused to pay the $3,000 fee, insisting, "It's not ME!" Later the portrait was exhibited, titled "That" and the banker phoned the artist to complain.

"But it's not you," said the artist. "You said so yourself."

He finally sold the portrait to the banker for $5,000 by changing the title to "The Philanthropist."

Airman Eddie Cies Home From Vietnam

Airman First Class Eddie M. Cies arrived home Thursday after spending the past year serving with the Air Force at Vietnam.

Cies received his discharge at San Francisco, California, on Wednesday and left by plane via St. Louis to Paducah. He called his family from St. Louis and arrived in Paducah before they could drive to Paducah.

The Murray man is a graduate of Calloway County High School and attended Murray State University. He took his basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, and was stationed at a base in Mississippi and at Turner Air Force Base, Georgia, before going to Bogota, Colombia, and Sao Paulo, Brazil, on a special photo mapping wing assignment.

While in Vietnam he wrote requesting, and received a Kentucky flag from Governor Breathitt to have with his company.

Cies is married to the former Eva Overcast, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Overcast of Murray, and they have one daughter, Lisa. Mrs. Cies is employed at Sears in Benton but has been residing in Murray while her husband was overseas.

The Murray man is the son of Mrs. Joe Pat Lamb and grandson of Mrs. Ruby Laster. His sister is Miss Vickie Pat Lamb.

Veterans Day Program Is Set Tomorrow

By L. J. Horth
Murray State University will honor its war dead in a simple Veterans Day ceremony at 10:30 o'clock, November 11, President Ralph Woods announced today.

While the ROTC unit fires a salute to the War Dead, the faculty, staff, and students will pause for a moment of respectful silence. Col. Lance E. Booth, commanding officer of the ROTC unit, has announced that the campus ceremony will take place at 10:30 o'clock near the flag in front of the Administration Building. Then the contingent will march down town in time for the formal ceremony at the courthouse square at 11:11.

Dr. Woods, in making plans for the ceremony, said, "In these days of demonstrations and disagreements, we at home must not forget the sacrifices of our men who are dying and have died for our country."

Fifty-one former students and alumni of Murray State lost their lives in World War II. Their names are engraved in bronze on a plaque in the foyer of the Administration. A flag with the 51 gold stars in V formation is kept in a glass case in the lobby of the Administration Building.

Complete records of MSU deaths in the Korean and Vietnam wars are not available. Alumni and university officials are asking relatives and friends of deceased

Both Parties Are Represented In State Capitol

The top state officers in Kentucky will be divided between the Republicans and the Democrats when Judge Louis B. Nunn takes over as Governor of Kentucky.

Wendell Ford, a Democrat, will be Lt. Governor of the state. John Breckinridge as attorney general; Mrs. Thelma Stovall as treasurer and Wendell Butler as superintendent of public instruction all will represent the Democrats.

Republicans will hold the following posts: Elmer Begley as secretary of state; Clyde Conley as auditor; Robert Miller as commissioner of agriculture; and Dick Vermillion as clerk of the court of appeals.

With returns available from all but eight precincts in the state, the unofficial results were:

Governor: Nunn 440,988; Ward 422,180.

Lt. Governor: Ford 409,037; Russell 396,400.

Secretary of State: Begley 260,997; Claude Rex 379,005.

Auditor General: Breckinridge 390,475; Lester Burns 361,235.

Treasurer: Stovall 403,947; Jack Jenkins 381,562.

Auditor: Conley 382,233; John Greene 380,183.

Supr. Public Instruction: Butler 398,565; Douglas Miller 385,073.

Agriculture Commissioner: Miller 385,194; Earl St. Clair 380,208.

Appellate Clerk: Vermillion 362,420.

There was a feeling in some quarters, that even if Nunn plans mass firings, he might hold off until next spring to avoid antagonizing the Democratic-dominated legislature which meets in January.

Unbeaten, Untied College Teams Picked As Underdogs This Week

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

Two of the country's four unbeaten and untied major college football powers are underdogs and a third faces a formidable opposition Saturday when the season heads into its homestretch.

Wyoming, the nation's seventh-ranked team with an 8-0 record, is the only one of the big four which is expected to win handily. The Cowboys are a heavy choice against New Mexico which is 0-4 in the Western Athletic Conference and 1-7 overall.

Southern California, North Carolina State and Indiana all are facing tough opposition, however, with Southern California the only favorite among the trio.

Tough Opponents

The first-ranked Trojans put their 8-0 state on the line against Oregon State, whose 5-2-1 record includes a victory over Purdue and a tie with UCLA. Southern Cal has turned in two consecutive mediocre performances and again may be playing with one foot out the door.

Tickets Go On Sale For Super Bowl

MIAMI 87 — Tickets for professional football's Super Bowl in Miami's Orange Bowl Stadium Jan. 14 went on sale today.

The football Commissioner Pete Rozelle said 34,000 tickets priced at $12 each were placed on public mail order sale. Another 13,000 tickets at $6 each and 8,000 for 50¢ apiece will go on sale Nov. 27 at the Orange Bowl ticket window.

A sell-out crowd of 75,546 is expected for the pro classic pitting the champions of the National Football League and the American Football League.

If the stadium is filled as expected, the game will gross more than $3 million. Ticket sales would amount to $700,000 and the Commission Broadcasting System is paying $2.5 million for exclusive rights to televise and broadcast the game.

The first Super Bowl last January drew only 61,996 fans to the 100,000-seat Los Angeles Coliseum to watch Green Bay Packers upend the Kansas City Chiefs 35-10.

All mail orders for the $12 tickets must be accompanied by a postal money order, bank money order or certified check. Rozelle's office said no personal checks would be accepted. An additional $1 for handling charges must be included and no refunds will be made.

Rozelle's office said there is no limit on the number of tickets that may be ordered. Orders should be addressed to "World Championship game," Box 546, Miami, Fla. 33135.

Priority will be given Miami Dolphins season ticket holders.

Man Dies Today In Home Fire

Oury Dunn, age 62, died from multiple burns and suffocation in his bed this morning, according to Max H. Churchill, Calloway County coroner.

Dunn was carried from his smoldering and smoking bed by Chief Frank Robertson and Captain Noel McNutt of the Murray Fire Department who immediately entered the house after their arrival there.

The house was located at 204 Walnut Street, just east of the Baptist Church. Dunn was in a bed in the front room of the house, Robertson said. Robertson and McNutt did not wear gas masks, even though the house was filled with smoke. One of the firemen, however, put on a mask while Robertson and McNutt were going into the house in the event they could not make it to the man because of the smoke.

The fire department received the call at 9:12 that the house was on fire and that a man was in the house whom they could not get out. Dunn was pronounced dead at the time he was taken out of the house and the coroner was immediately called.

Churchill said an investigation of the fire was being held, but an autopsy will not be conducted. The fatally burned man was a former employee of the Railway Express Company. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

If you have a den in your home, take a look at it and imagine it being the entire home. Include with the den the electric lights, and possibly an adjoining restroom.

How many notes should be taken? Many students go to extremes. One type of student attempts to take everything down. He is so busy copying words that he loses the point of what is being said.

Another type of student objects to taking any notes in class. He may gain a good understanding of the lecture, but he will forget the main points and have no basis for review.

Both of these extremes should be avoided. A good set of notes is Wipe clearly and neatly. A left hand book will permit more flexibility. If notes can't be read they are useless. Review them quickly if necessary. The ideas will still be fresh.

The purpose of notes is to assist a student in reviewing the course material. A point should be made to review previous notes before each lecture. This will help to maintain the continuity and total relationship of all parts of the course.

Note Taking Is Aid To The Student

By DAVID NYDICK

UPI Education Specialist

Why don't millions of eligible citizens exercise their right and responsibility to vote? Our national strength is based upon the participation of the people through elected representatives. Perhaps one of the major causes of this problem of indifference and apathy is the educational system.

Although much effort has been made to increase the emphasis upon civic education, there is still a lack of creative methods and concentration in many school curriculums. In too many situations, one finds citizenship education somewhere between these extremes.

It covers the main points and also allows the student to think during the lecture in order to understand what is being said.

In order to take a helpful set of notes, a student may follow a few simple suggestions.

A lecture is generally organized around several major points. It also includes sub-points, explanations and summaries. The instructor may emphasize important points in various ways. The student must listen carefully and sub-points in outline form. Fill in the details when there is time.

Arrange the notes in outline form on the blackboard. He does this to help you organize your thoughts. The student might develop his own diagrams for appropriate situations.

Citizenship For Student Is Important

By DAVID NYDICK

UPI Education Specialist

Why don't millions of eligible citizens exercise their right and responsibility to vote? Our national strength is based upon the participation of the people through elected representatives. Perhaps one of the major causes of this problem of indifference and apathy is the educational system.

Although much effort has been made to increase the emphasis upon civic education, there is still a lack of creative methods and concentration in many school curriculums. In too many situations, one finds citizenship education somewhere between these extremes.

It covers the main points and also allows the student to think during the lecture in order to understand what is being said.

In order to take a helpful set of notes, a student may follow a few simple suggestions.

A lecture is generally organized around several major points. It also includes sub-points, explanations and summaries. The instructor may emphasize important points in various ways. The student must listen carefully and sub-points in outline form. Fill in the details when there is time.

Arrange the notes in outline form on the blackboard. He does this to help you organize your thoughts. The student might develop his own diagrams for appropriate situations.

Most restrooms are inaccessible to people in wheel chairs or crutches. Revolving doors present a barrier to crippled people, he continued, and telephone booths are impossible to enter.

He urged that when new buildings are constructed that some thought be given to the handicapped. He pointed out that many handicapped people can earn a living and be tax paying citizens, if they could only get into the business office.

To many crippled people church attendance is denied, he continued, because they cannot get inside. In Kentucky there are 4,000 in wheelchairs, 200 with heavy leg braces, 2,200 with artificial limbs, 80,000 with heart conditions, and 280,000 over the age of 65 who would benefit by easier access to buildings.

He praised the freshmen squad and said that next year the picture should be brighter. He reviewed the OVC conference and said that he picked Eastern to give more games than any other team. Middle Tennessee will surprise many people too, he said.

He urged continued support for the Racers. Nat Ryan Hughes told Mr. Luther at the conclusion of his talk that no stronger booster could be found for the Murray State Racers than the Murray Rotary Club, win or lose.

Miss Tonda Leah Parker Exchanges Vows
With Steven Luther West In Lovely
Ceremony At The First Methodist Church

MRS. STEVEN LUTHER WEST

The marriage of Miss Tonda Leah Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Parker, and Steven Luther West, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. West, was solemnized on Friday, October 6, at seven o'clock in the evening in the sanctuary of the First Methodist Church with Rev. Lloyd Ramey officiating.

In a double-ring candlelight ceremony, the vows were exchanged before an altar flanked with floral arrangements and beamed with spotlights.

A program of musical music was presented by Mrs. Richard Farrell, organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a street-length gown of ivory lace over satin. The fitted sheath featured a square neckline and long lace sleeves. Special back interest was a large ivory satin bow. Her veil of ivory silk tulle was secured to a circle of small pearls de side. Her hair was styled in a classic updo with soft curls framing her face. Her bouquet was of yellow and bronze autumn flowers accented by harvest grains and tied with gold velvet streamers.

The groom, dressed in a tuxedo with a white shirt and black bow tie, carried a matching bouquet with gold velvet streamers.

Philip Larkins of Lexington, groomsmen and fraternity brother of the groom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Eddie West, cousin of the groom, and Bobby Joe Emerson.

Miss Teri Lea Parker, sister of the bride, kept the register.

Mrs. Parker, mother of the bride, wore a floral printed bonded wool knit sheath with black accents. Her corsage was of white chrysanthemums.

Mrs. West, mother of the groom, wore a blue wool knit suit with matching accessories, and her flowers were white chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Wilson Parley, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Luther Robertson and Mrs. Owen West, grandmothers of the groom, wore corsages of white chrysanthemums.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

The serving table was covered with ivory lace over green and held a centerpiece of fall flowers flanked by a three-tiered silver candelabra. Those serving were Miss Teri Parker, sister of the bride, and Miss Bonnie Johnson, cousin of the bride.

For traveling, the bride chose an aqua blue knit A-line shift with long sleeves. Her accessories were black patent.

The couple is now at home in Lexington, where Mr. West is a student at the University of Kentucky.

Mrs. Harlan Hodges Talks On Flag At Alpha Luncheon

At the October meeting of the Alpha Department of the Murray Women's Club, the members attentively listened to an excellent talk given by Mrs. Harlan Hodges on "What About Our Flag".

She related the many changes in design of the flag of the 13 colonies and that of the United States of America before arriving at the 50 star flag authorized by President Dwight Eisenhower in 1959. The Grand Union, the first national flag of the embryonic United States, came into being at General George Washington's headquarters in Cambridge, Mass.

In June 1777 the nation's first flag law was passed when the design of the Stars and Stripes (13 stars and 13 stripes) was approved by continental congress as the first legally adopted national flag of the United States, Mrs. Hodges said.

It is interesting to note that the two first states to be admitted to the union under the constitution were Vermont and Kentucky. At this time 1795, congress created a flag of 15 stars and 15 stripes to give recognition to these states.

In 1894 William Driver, sea captain from Salem Mass., gave the flag another name "Old Glory". This has had a wide acceptance and has remained in use since that time.

In the Murray-Chalmers County Public Library can be found several books telling about the flag of the United States of America. Mrs. Hodges highly recommends

Girl, 13, Not a Facts Bureau

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 13 and people tell me I am very mature for my age. Abby, I know more about the facts of life and the course of nature than most kids, and I got it straight from my mother. She told me everything starting from the age of 8.

I don't know how I got the reputation, but girls from 10 to 16 come to me for information about the pill and that sort. Even boys come to me with questions.

Should I answer their questions, or tell them to ask their mothers or what?

DEAR "LITTLE ABBY": I don't know how you got the reputation of knowing so much, but it's not because you've kept it a secret. If a girl (between 10 and 16) asks a 13-year-old for information about "the pill and that sort," perhaps her mother should know she is seeking such information, so the best thing for you to do is to tell her to ask her mother. Your own mother appears to have pretty good sense, so ask her how much she thinks you should be telling the other kids.

DEAR ABBY: We are a family of five, plus one. The new addition is a basenot hound. We got him when he was 3 weeks old. He was and is not one of the girls from the real cute then and everybody loved him.

Today he is 3 months old and a regular pain-in-the-neck. When he eats, he slopes all over. And when he drinks water, his ears get sopping wet. He drools and climbs up on the furniture and slobbers all over everybody and everything. And he's still not housebroken.

My husband can't stand him. He says he makes him sick. I put up with the dog because the children love him. My husband wants to get rid of him, but it would break the children's hearts.

The hound's name is "Snoopy," but we should have named him "Smelly." But that's another problem. What should we do?

DEAR DOG TIERED: It's not the dog's fault that he wasn't properly trained to be a lovable, obedient, attractive pet. Dogs (not unlike children) can't be expected to know what they haven't been taught. It may be too late to train "Snoopy," but give him a try. Otherwise, I'm with dad.

DEAR ABBY: This is for Cindy, whose husband asks her out with only an hour's notice. God bless him for asking you when he was not one of the girls from the office. Let me tell you from experience, it's smart always to be ready. Have a long list of sitters you can call at the last minute. And some good "friends" in reserve in case you can't get a sitter. Do something with your hair during the daytime just in case that's the night your husband wants to take you out. And always have something ready to wear.

Me? I take no chances. All I need is 5 minutes notice and I can get ready for an audience with the pope. . . . PREPARED

CONFIDENTIAL TO HURT WIFE: Tell your loving husband that a married man has no business wearing an I. D. bracelet given to him by an old flame, and if it doesn't "mean anything," he shouldn't mind putting it away.

And until he does he shouldn't expect you to function properly as a loving wife. . . .

How has the world been treating you? Upload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069. For a personal, unpublished reply, inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069.

Ape Painting Stirs The Art World

By PAUL R. JESCHKE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Attention, Pablo Picasso. . . . YOU'RE BEING "aped" by an artistic crew of primates at the San Francisco zoo.

Nineteen "ape art" paintings, already hailed by critics as "unfettered," "uninhibited," "bold," "pure originality," "stunning impressionistic communications—on canvas" and a "psychedelic adventure for the enlightened," went on public display today.

The colorful canvases are the work of five chimpanzees who demonstrated their artistic techniques to newsmen at a special preview Thursday.

Between occasional tastings of the paint, eight-year-old Tullulah, the zoo's champ chimp painter, created a muddy brown abstraction which newsmen quickly entitled, "This is a Chimp Waiting for the Interesting People at the Zoo."

Tullulah hopped into the "chore of television lights and sat herself down smack in the middle of the canvas upon which heavy lines of paint were already applied by keeper Don Farrington.

She backed off, tasted the white paint, nodded approvingly and ate a good sized helping of the blue. "Fortunately, it's vegetable oil paint," said zoo director Ronald Reuther. "It's perfectly safe. She's just curious. Kids do the same thing."

When Tullulah really got to work and she grasped the brush comfortably in her left hand and drew a series of heavy brown lines across the Canvas. A few swipes with a paint roller and she was through.

"It might not look like much to you, but I'd be proud to have it hanging in my living room," said Farrington.

Reuther said the San Francisco chimps, who have been painting about five months, "just love it, and they're getting better all the time."

"If you watch them closely, it's clear they do discern a pattern. Like children, they would prefer to make a regular pattern rather than an irregular one. In zoo conditions, these animals can become very bored and they are very bright. Painting is the high point of their day," Reuther said.

Rewards For Artist
Tullulah received an ice cream cone and was allowed to smoke a cigarette as reward for her output. She previously produced such memorable works as "Batman Blows his Cool," "Gibbon's Decline," "Freakout" and "Little Robin Purple Breast."

Thus far, however, Tullulah and her four painting companions, Josephine, Candy, Chico and Jackie—haven't really cut into the market for genuine Picassos. Their work won't be sold until April 30 when, after six months of public display, sealed bids will be opened. Proceeds go to the zoo.

Keeper Farrington, who looked like a walking Picasso himself following an affectionate hug from Tullulah, has high hopes for his chimp charges.

"Maybe they'll never do a 'Mona Lisa,'" he said, "but I really think these primate painters are good. We've got common ancestors with them, you know. Maybe we can learn something about ourselves."

Dried beans will cook more rapidly and are less likely to crack if the soaking is done near the end of the cooking.

CHAPTER 34

ROB WON his case against the Republic of Texas in the April session of the court. The petition to the court specified no particular injury.

The speeches of his attorneys citing his services to the Republic had the anticipated result on judge and jury, and reduced the district attorney's defense.

So Rob told me, to almost inaudible routine. Judge Hanford presided, and in his decision announced that the jury had found Colonel Fetter was entitled to the land originally applied for; therefore, the court decreed the recovery of this land and that patent be issued and that petitioner also recover from the Republic his cost in "this behalf expended."

With this victory, Rob's popularity and influence soared.

Rob branded Rose as a vicious killer, embellishing his crimes with spine-chilling details, and promised that he would personally see Rose prosecuted by the Republic of Texas if the law-abiding voters would return him to his place of authority in the Congress.

When the sixth Congress convened in early November, Rob had already been in Austin for several days, working on matters related to presidential favor.

So it came about that when Lamar issued a presidential proclamation on November fifteenth offering a five hundred-dollar reward for the capture of Old Rose, Rob's energies in that direction were given full credit.

The proclamation charged that Rose had assisted in the murder of the sheriff of Panola County in January and had murdered two citizens of that same county around September first. Old Rose's timing on these two killings in the fall had been in Rob's favor.

Though Rob wrote me much of his legislative doings, he never spoke of his social life in Austin.

Rob began to realize that he must carry out the arrest of Rose himself. No one had even made an attempt to act on the Lamar proclamation.

He was strangely preoccupied and quiet when he arrived home. There were eight armed men with him, including Heskiah. Nine more joined him at Mulberry Shore. He carried a copy of the presidential proclamation and a warrant for the arrest of Rose. I protested that he was too tired to undertake a mission so dangerous.

"Not so dangerous," he replied. "We'll take him by surprise. He's still in Austin. And I happen to know that he's at home right now with none of his gang around him. We'll overpower him—take him without bloodshed."

At that point, that Old Rose was as surprised as Rob was anticipated. The story has been told and retold, printed and repeated so many times through the years that it has become a legend of the lake country.

When Rob and his company of armed men approached the place, they didn't see Rose anywhere about. There was some light-clearing work going on, and Negroes were piling brush and setting fire to it. The armed men began a systematic search of the place.

Now Old Rose was there. He knew what the men had come for and was completely unprepared for them. He had been supervising the work of the Negroes and was unarmed. He saw the riders before they had a view of him. He flung himself flat on the ground and told the Negroes to pile brush on him. This they did. He continued to issue whispered instructions from the brush pile. They were to go about their work at the same pace, pay no more attention to the spot where he lay than to the other piles. Old Rose was to stroll around in range of his voice. Keep the work going—set fire to some of the piles.

The men gathered back around Rob to watch for and order him. He kept looking around the place trying to figure out where Rose might be.

The courtroom would make a better battleground so Rob and his companions rode away, and the men dispersed as they went, until by the time they arrived back at Mulberry Shore, there was only Rob and Heskiah.

When I heard Rob's account of his failure to find Rose, it was like an announcement of doom.

"Do you think he was there?" "Not far away at least," he replied.

"You know how vengeful he is. He'll get his gang together and try to kill you. He won't wait. You should be prepared for an attack tonight."

"You're all keyed up, aren't you, Hatty?" His tone was derisive. "I thought you were the fearless pioneer, woman. The wilderness must be getting on your nerves. I think you need a trip. Maybe you'd better return to the city. Live among civilized people again. Have friends instead of killers for neighbors. This isn't as romantic as you thought, is it?"

I studied him—really worried now. Nothing he had done or said this gloomy suspenseful day had seemed normal or right. I didn't resent his remarks, for I knew how tired he must be with the strain of long riding and imminent danger.

But I was deeply disturbed over the immediate threat to his life and his indifference toward it. I felt that I must force him to take measures for protection against a raid that very night.

"You shouldn't have let those men disperse," I said. "They should have remained with you to meet the attack that's bound to come. Every man of you should have realized that Rose will make a fight of it now that you've snatched him. You're the first since Sheriff Campbell to try to hunt him down. It isn't too late to do something. Let Heskiah and Abraham ride out for some of our nearest neighbors. At least six or eight of your friends would be necessary by midnight. Rose can't possibly get his gang together and get away before then. We're well supplied with weapons and ammunition. We can hold this place like a fort."

"Listen, Hatty," He spoke slowly in an effort to control his temper. "He couldn't possibly get his gang together for an attack any time tonight, even if he did get this through your head. The subject of Rose is closed for tonight. I don't want to hear another word out of you. I want to be left alone—entirely alone—you understand. Let the day sleep with Heskiah. Be sure that Lakeland's asleep when you bring her in. I don't want any story nonsense tonight. Bring some brandy and go away. I want to be alone—alone! Do you hear me?"

I heard him well enough, and the temper warnings were all out. So I brought him the brandy and left the room. And didn't come back until he was in bed and sound asleep.

I settled Lakeland comfortably in the middle of the big bed, not touching her father, then I lay down on the far edge, but not to sleep.

I lay there waiting, listening, waiting, hearing all the night sounds I knew so well: the creaks in raucous spring beds—the dogs' arched or possum—the eerie call of an owl I dozed once, then awoke with a start, thinking I had heard footsteps. And I must have, for at once the dogs set to barking as they always marked when strangers approached.

"Rob!" I reached over and shook him. Then I shook his shoulder. "Wake up, Rob! Someone is outside, sneaking around."

Harriet beamed again how good life can be to a woman who has to fend for herself. (To Be Continued Tomorrow)

Georgia Slated To Meet Trojans; LSU Picked Over 'Bama By Oddsmakers

By VITO STELLINO

UPI Sports Writer

"George Gipp" will be at Corvallis, Ore. Saturday and O. J. Simpson hopes to put on quite a show for the "Gipper."

Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, who played the legendary halfback George Gipp in the movie version of Knute Rockne's life, is traveling to Corvallis to watch the top-ranked University of Southern California Trojans meet dangerous Oregon State Saturday.

Oregon State, which has a 4-2-1 record and is an 11-point underdog, is given a good chance of beating the Trojans since the Beavers upset Purdue three weeks ago and tied UCLA last week.

The Beavers' chances for success rest mainly on their ability to contain Simpson and the other USC speedsters, who've rolled up an 8-0 record this season and are one of the four unbeaten major college teams in the nation.

Simpson Returning
Simpson was injured two weeks ago and sat out last week's game with California. Oregon State expects him to be back this week—but the Beavers hope to give him a rude welcome. Simpson remained the nation's leading rusher even though he missed last week's game and he's bound to be dangerous even if he's bothered by the lay-off.

While USC attempts to keep its perfect record intact, UCLA will be trying to bounce back from last week's tie with Oregon State to knock off Washington. UCLA is an 11-point favorite over

Washington but the Huskies hand the Bruins their only loss last season and could pull another upset.

UCLA, which plays USC next week, must win this game to remain a serious contender for the Rose Bowl.

The Big Ten's battle for the Rose Bowl berth will also be in the limelight as fifth-ranked Purdue meets 10th-ranked Minnesota and sixth-ranked Indiana faces unranked Michigan State.

Hope For Upset
Since Purdue can't return, a loss to the Bolshemakers would necessarily knock Minnesota out of the Pasadena picture. But an upset victory would give their hopes quite a lift.

Indiana, which is 7-0 overall and one of those four unbeaten teams in the country, is a seven-point underdog at Michigan State. The suspicion remains that Michigan State, which has been sputtering all season, is finally due to explode—and Indiana could be the victim.

Besides USC and Indiana, the other two unbeaten teams are North Carolina State and Wyoming.

North Carolina State is playing at Penn State and the Wolfpack is a slight underdog. Apparently, the oddsmakers figure that Penn State's Pennsylvanians are better than the Tar Heels.

Cowboys Favored
Wyoming is the one unbeaten team which would have no trouble remaining that way. The Cowboys meet New Mexico, which has a 1-7 record.

Second-ranked Tennessee is an other club which should have little trouble and is a 20-point favorite over Tulane.

Eighteenth-ranked Notre Dame is a 35-point favorite over Pittsburgh and since the Irish almost always win by the points, the score should be something like 42-6 or 49-13.

Ninth-ranked Oklahoma is a 20-point pick over Iowa State while Alabama, tied for 10th with Minnesota, is considered a toss-up against LSU.

ATLANTA 676 — Louisiana State, virtually knocked out of the free-for-all fight for the Southeastern Conference football title by last weekend's tie with Mississippi, looks like a good bet this week to kayo defending co-champion Alabama.

The 16th-ranked Bengals 4-2-1 rate as a toss-up with the 10th-ranked Crimson Tide 5-1-1. But they're back in their own hair at Baton Rouge, La., after visits to 2nd-ranked Tennessee and Ole Miss and appear primed to snap back.

Alabama hasn't looked like itself this fall. The Tide has shown unexpected weakness on pass defense and already given up 102 points—more than ever before in the decade since Bear Bryant took over.

The Tide offense, explosive earlier in the season, also has faltered. It has scored only 13 points in each of its last three games, a 24-13 loss to Tennessee and 13-16 and 13-10 victories over Clemson and Mississippi State.

Mississippi, idle this weekend, has a chance to be a spoiler next week. The Rebels, left the same frustrating position as LSU by tie, take on Tennessee at Memphis, a week from Saturday.

If Tennessee beats Mississippi, the battle, for all practical purposes, is over. The powerful Vols will then be odds-on favorites to close out with victories over Kentucky and Vanderbilt and win their first conference championship since 1956.

Tennessee is 3-0 in league play and Alabama and Tennessee are tied for first in the SEC. Georgia and Alabama are tied for second.

Tennessee, which coasted last week against Tampa, steps outside the SEC again Saturday as it hosts independent Tulane.

But there's plenty of other conference action. Georgia meets Florida in a key game at Jacksonville; Auburn will be host to Mississippi State and Kentucky will be at Vanderbilt.

The weekend begins Friday night at Miami where the Hurricanes seek their sixth straight win as host to Georgia Tech.

In other games Saturday, Florida State, paced by major college total offense leader Kim Hammond, is favored by a touchdown as host to Virginia Tech, Memphis State visits Houston at the Astro Dome, and Chattanooga will be at Tampa.

Tennessee is favored by 20 points Georgia by 7, Auburn by 19, Vanderbilt by 6, and Miami by 10.

Vols Go Against Tulane Tomorrow in General Stadium

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. 676 — Second-ranked Tennessee puts its national reputation on the line Saturday at Neyland Stadium against Tulane's Green Wave, the Vols' second nonconference opponent in a row.

The game—win, lose or draw—will leave the Big Orange on top of the Southeastern Conference, but anything but a win will bruise the Vols' pride and cause a considerable plunge in the national ratings.

Tulane has come on strong in the last two games, taking the measure of Georgia Tech, 25-12, and Vanderbilt, 27-14. Tech, however, was a sorely crippled club and Vandy has had something less than a brilliant season.

Tulane's shift of Warren Ransom from backup quarterback to fullback has proved a good move, and quarterback Bobby Duhon is

WORKING IN YOUR BOAT

By Bob Brewster

Much has been written about safety afloat, but very little about safety when boats are ashore.

To remedy the situation, here are some tips from the authorities at Mercury outboards which can be helpful while working on your land-locked rig this winter.

Whether on the garage floor or on a trailer, block up the boat securely so it won't shift or tilt suddenly if you move about inside it. When a boat is on the ground with its motor off, the stern is much lighter than it normally is and can easily lift when you climb forward in the hull, such as when installing deck hardware or cleaning out a bow locker.

If extensive interior work is underway, it's often worthwhile to roll the boat off its trailer onto the garage floor. It makes climbing in and out and reaching for tools much easier and safer.

Get some rubber rollers from junked wringer-type washing machines. They are perfect for moving a boat in and out of the garage and along driveways when it's off the trailer. Do not use wood or pipe rollers under the keel of a fiberglass boat, as they are unyielding and put highly concentrated loads on small areas of keel causing damage to the fiberglass.

Apply strips of masking tape to the edges of cockpit coamings and other areas that will get scraping and chafing as you clamber in and out and pull tools and materials aboard. Out up an empty outboard-motor-shipping carton and lay the resulting large pieces of corrugated board on the cockpit floor. This will protect the deck from dirt or denting by dropped tools.

I wonder if any of you are still using your boats. I haven't had a chance to go fishing or hunting lately but I guess some of you have.

Let me know if you have any luck.

only undefeated team in the conference.

Kansas has been sharing the Big Eight Conference lead with Oklahoma, and is four and 0 in the league. However, Colorado, smarting from two successive losses, will knock the Jayhawks off their perch by ten points. Meanwhile, 7th-ranked Oklahoma will occupy the Driver's seat by itself after downing Iowa State by 33 points.

Tenth-ranked U. C. L. A. may be in for more trouble this week... they're favored to just ease by the Huskies of Washington by four points.

The other major conference leaders shouldn't get themselves into too much hot water, top-ranked Southern California should whip Oregon State by 15, while Tennessee, No. 2 in the Country and No. 1 in the Southeast Conference, will take Tulane to task by twenty points.

And-ranked North Carolina State, the highest wheel in the Atlantic Coast Conference, goes hunting outside the league—they might win they'd stayed at home. Their travels will run them into some real belligerents, Lions in Pennsylvania, Penn State will give the Wolfpack a mighty busy Saturday afternoon... North Carolina State to win by five points.

And there's still that small mob atop the Southwest Conference, 8th-ranked Texas, Texas A & M, and Texas Tech, all beaten just once in the conference. Texas will bowl by Baylor by 25... Texas A & M has the day off... and Texas Tech will stop T. C. U. by 18.

Wyoming, No. 17 in the nation, will rack up its fifth league win in the Western Athletic Conference, rolling over New Mexico by 47 points.

Auburn Hopes For Bowl Chances

AUBURN, Ala. 676 — Auburn

turns its high scoring offense loose against the huddles Mississippi State Bulldogs Saturday with hopes of giving its bowl chances a boost.

The Tigers, not expected to do much better than Mississippi State before the season opened, have surprised everyone by compiling a 5-2 record against a rugged schedule.

Auburn rates a solid favorite for the 1:30 p. m. (CST) game at Cliff Hare Stadium but the Bulldogs cannot be written off, since their one victory was against powerful Texas Tech. They lost the other six games.

Behind the passing of junior quarterback Logan Carter, Auburn has gained more yards 1-236 through the air than any other Southeastern Conference team this season but has only a 30-50 running attack.

Auburn's only other loss was to second-ranked Tennessee, but the fact that the Tigers must face Georgia and Alabama in their final two games of the season has kept the bowl talk subdued.

Auburn's current 3-1 SEC record is good enough for fourth place in the standings, but Alabama and Georgia are tied for second with 3-1 records while Tennessee heads the pack with 3-0 in conference play.

Mississippi State is near the bottom in most statistics but punter Dick McGraw is "threatening" the record for most punts. He has punted 73 times in seven games, which is an indication of the trouble the Bulldogs have had in moving the ball consistently.

The Bulldog offense will be bolstered Saturday by the return of quarterback Tommy Pharr and tailback Tommy Corbett, both of whom have been out with injuries.
